

Rachel O'Neill, Director of the ISG's Center for Genome Innovation, and Michael O'Neill, ISG's Assistant Director, provide a perspective on the publication of the gibbon genome in a News & Views article in Nature entitled: "Something to Swing About".

The first gibbon genome to be sequenced provides clues about how genomes can be shuffled in short evolutionary time frames, and about how gibbons adapted and diversified in the jungles of southeast Asia.

<http://www.nature.com/nature/journal/v513/n7517/full/513174a.html>

SAVE THE DATE – ISG Networking Workshop

An ISG Networking Workshop will be held on Monday, December 15 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the JAXGM building. The workshop will consist of brief presentations in the morning and an afternoon session on biocomputing. More details to follow.